NYC LIBRARIES

STYLE GUIDE

NYC Libraries hopes to connect users to all libraries and the resources they provide across NYC. The most important feature of the website is the search feature. The website's "Library search" feature allows users to connect with nearby libraries based on the entered zip and/or address in the search bar. The "book search" feature allows users to find books and locations they are available in with the search bar. The website also has an "events" and "resources" tab, which lists featured events and resources libraries provide.

The website helps connect people who are in need of Libraries services. it can also inform people who are curious about what a Library can offer beyond books.

Person A: college student, 20, lives in the Bronx, employed, needs help filing taxes for the first time, needs internet and computer, needs books for classes, needs printing, Person B: mother, 42, lives in Brooklyn, unemployed, needs resume help, needs computer, quiet space for reading, needs after school program for child, needs printer. Doesn't know where to go.

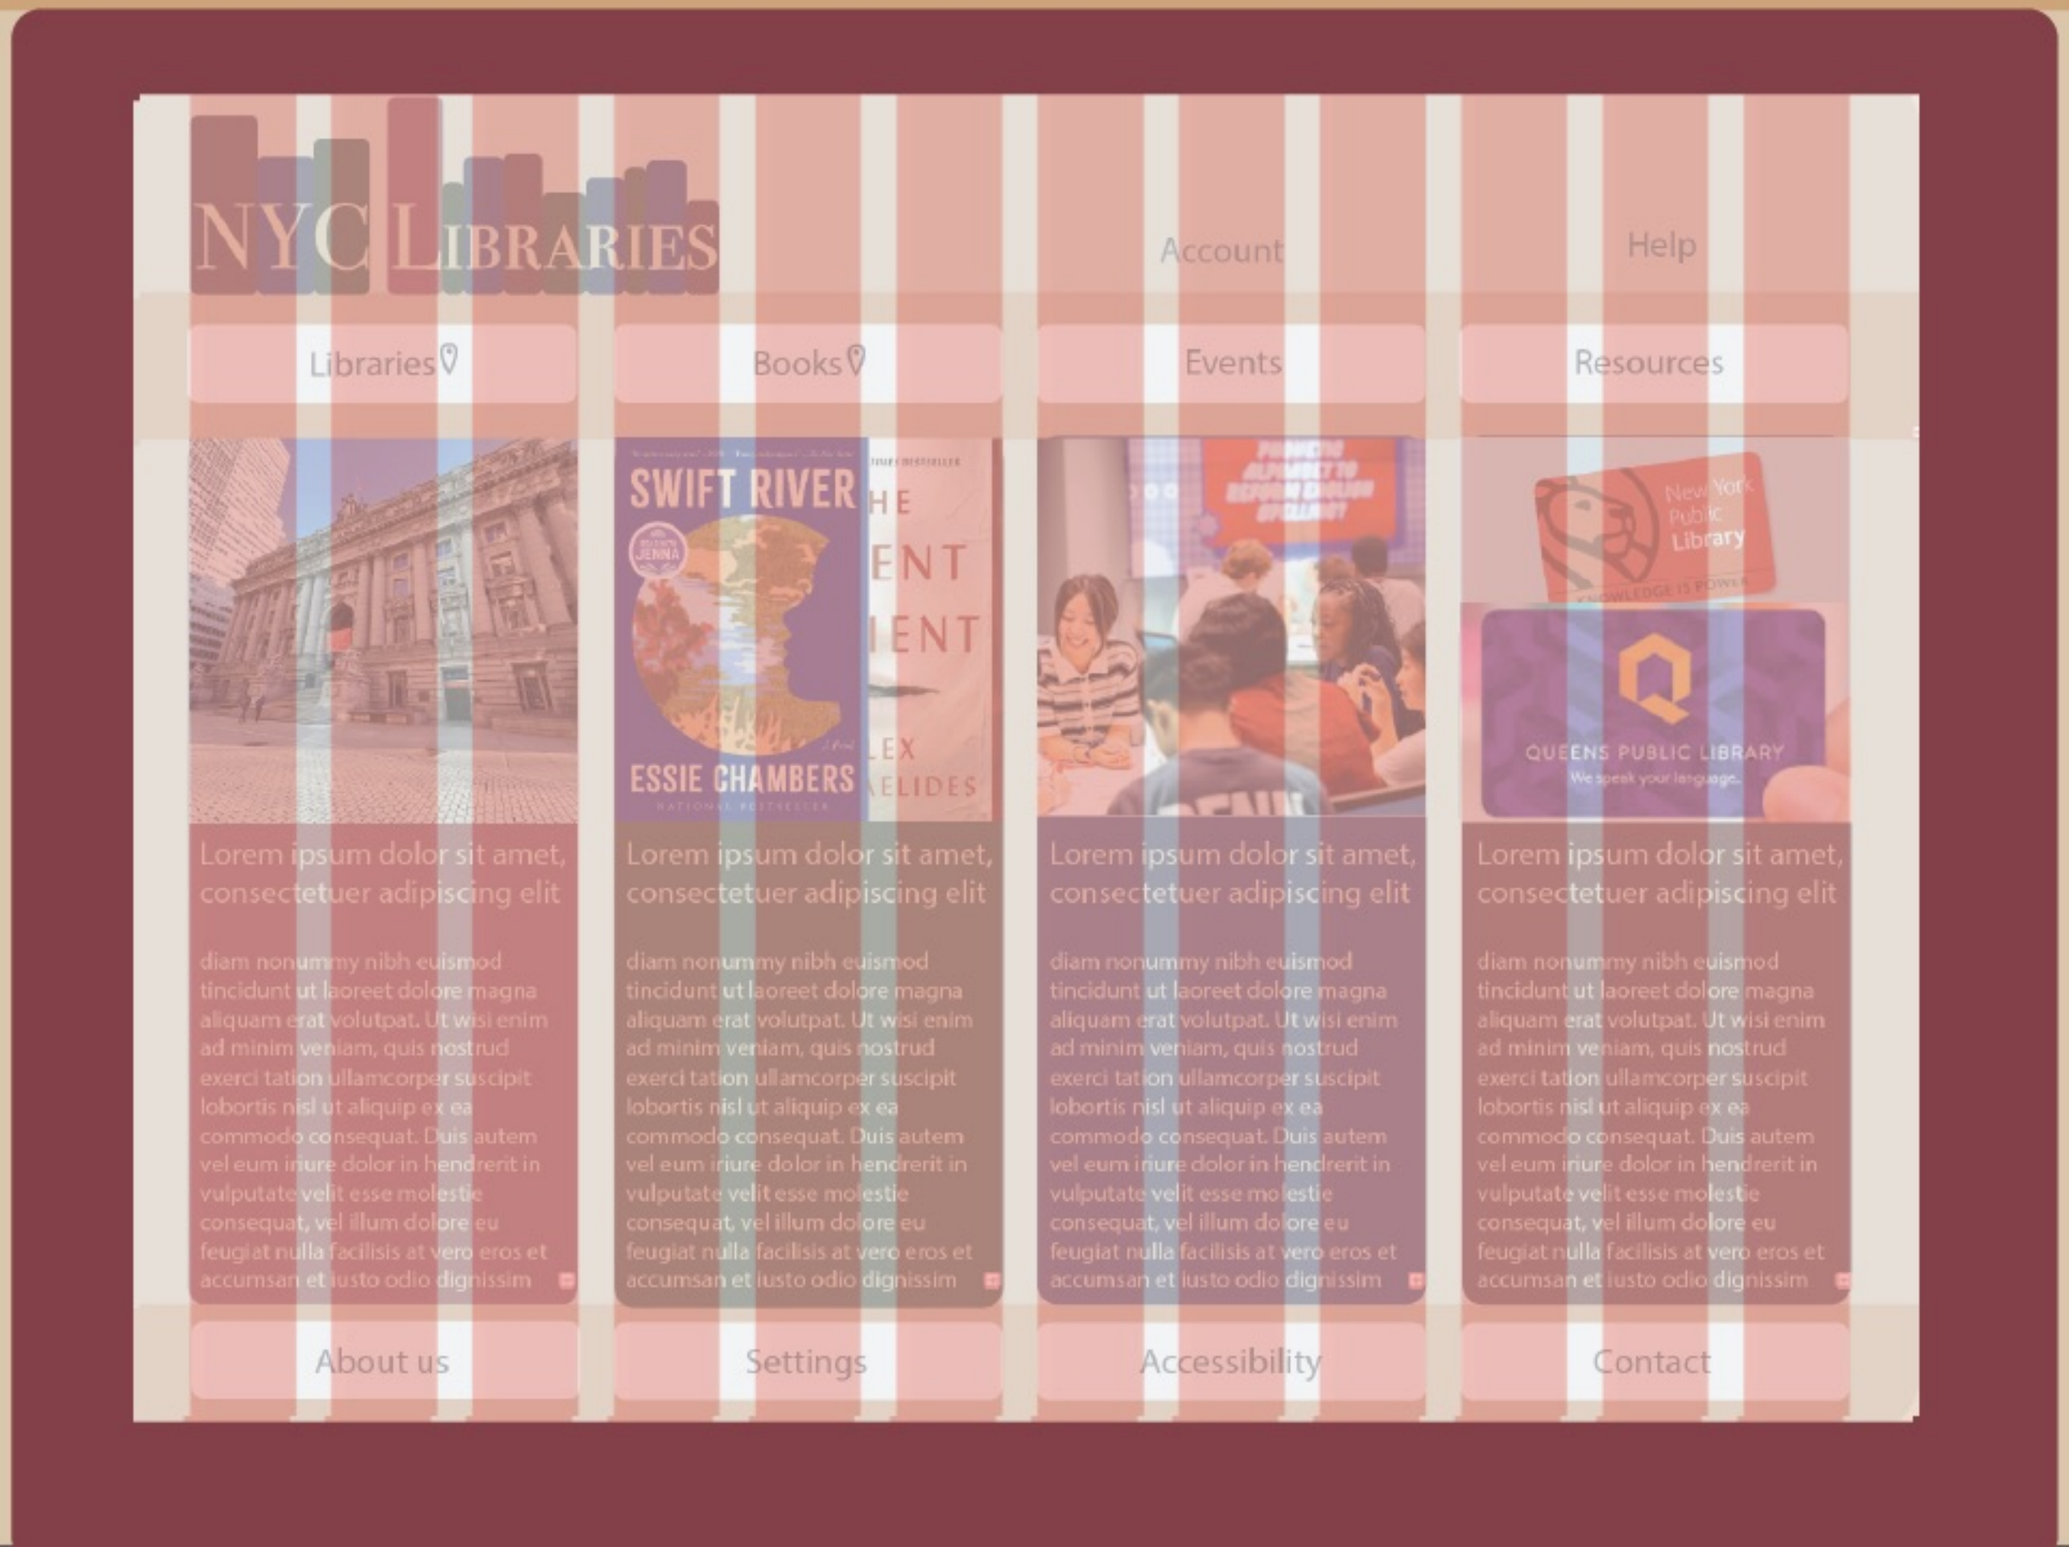
The website uses a 12 column grid. The grid gives the website a structure similar to a bookshelf



#7b434a

#553839

#553839

#1f1e20

#d8c599

#444839

#40475d

#221f20

#ffffff

The logo uses:

BONDNI 72 SMALLCAPS

the body text on the website uses: Myriad pro books heights to look like buildings

gold “title” text on books