NYC LIBRARIES

STYLE GUIDE

NYC Libraries hopes to connect users to all libraries across NYC and their resources. The biggest feature of the website is the search function. The website's "Library search" feature allows users to connect with nearby libraries near the location (zip and/or address) entered in the search bar. The "book search" feature allows users to find books and the locations they are available in with the search bar. The website also has an "events" and "resources" tab lists featured events and resources libraries provide.

The website aims to mainly help people who are in need of Libraries services to connect to them, as well as people who are curious about what a Library can offer

Person A: college student, 20, lives in the Bronx, employed, needs help filing taxes for the first time, needs internet and computer, needs books for classes, needs printing, Person B: mother, 42, lives in Brooklyn, unemployed, needs resume help, needs computer, quiet space for reading, needs after school program for child, needs printer. Doesn't know where to go.

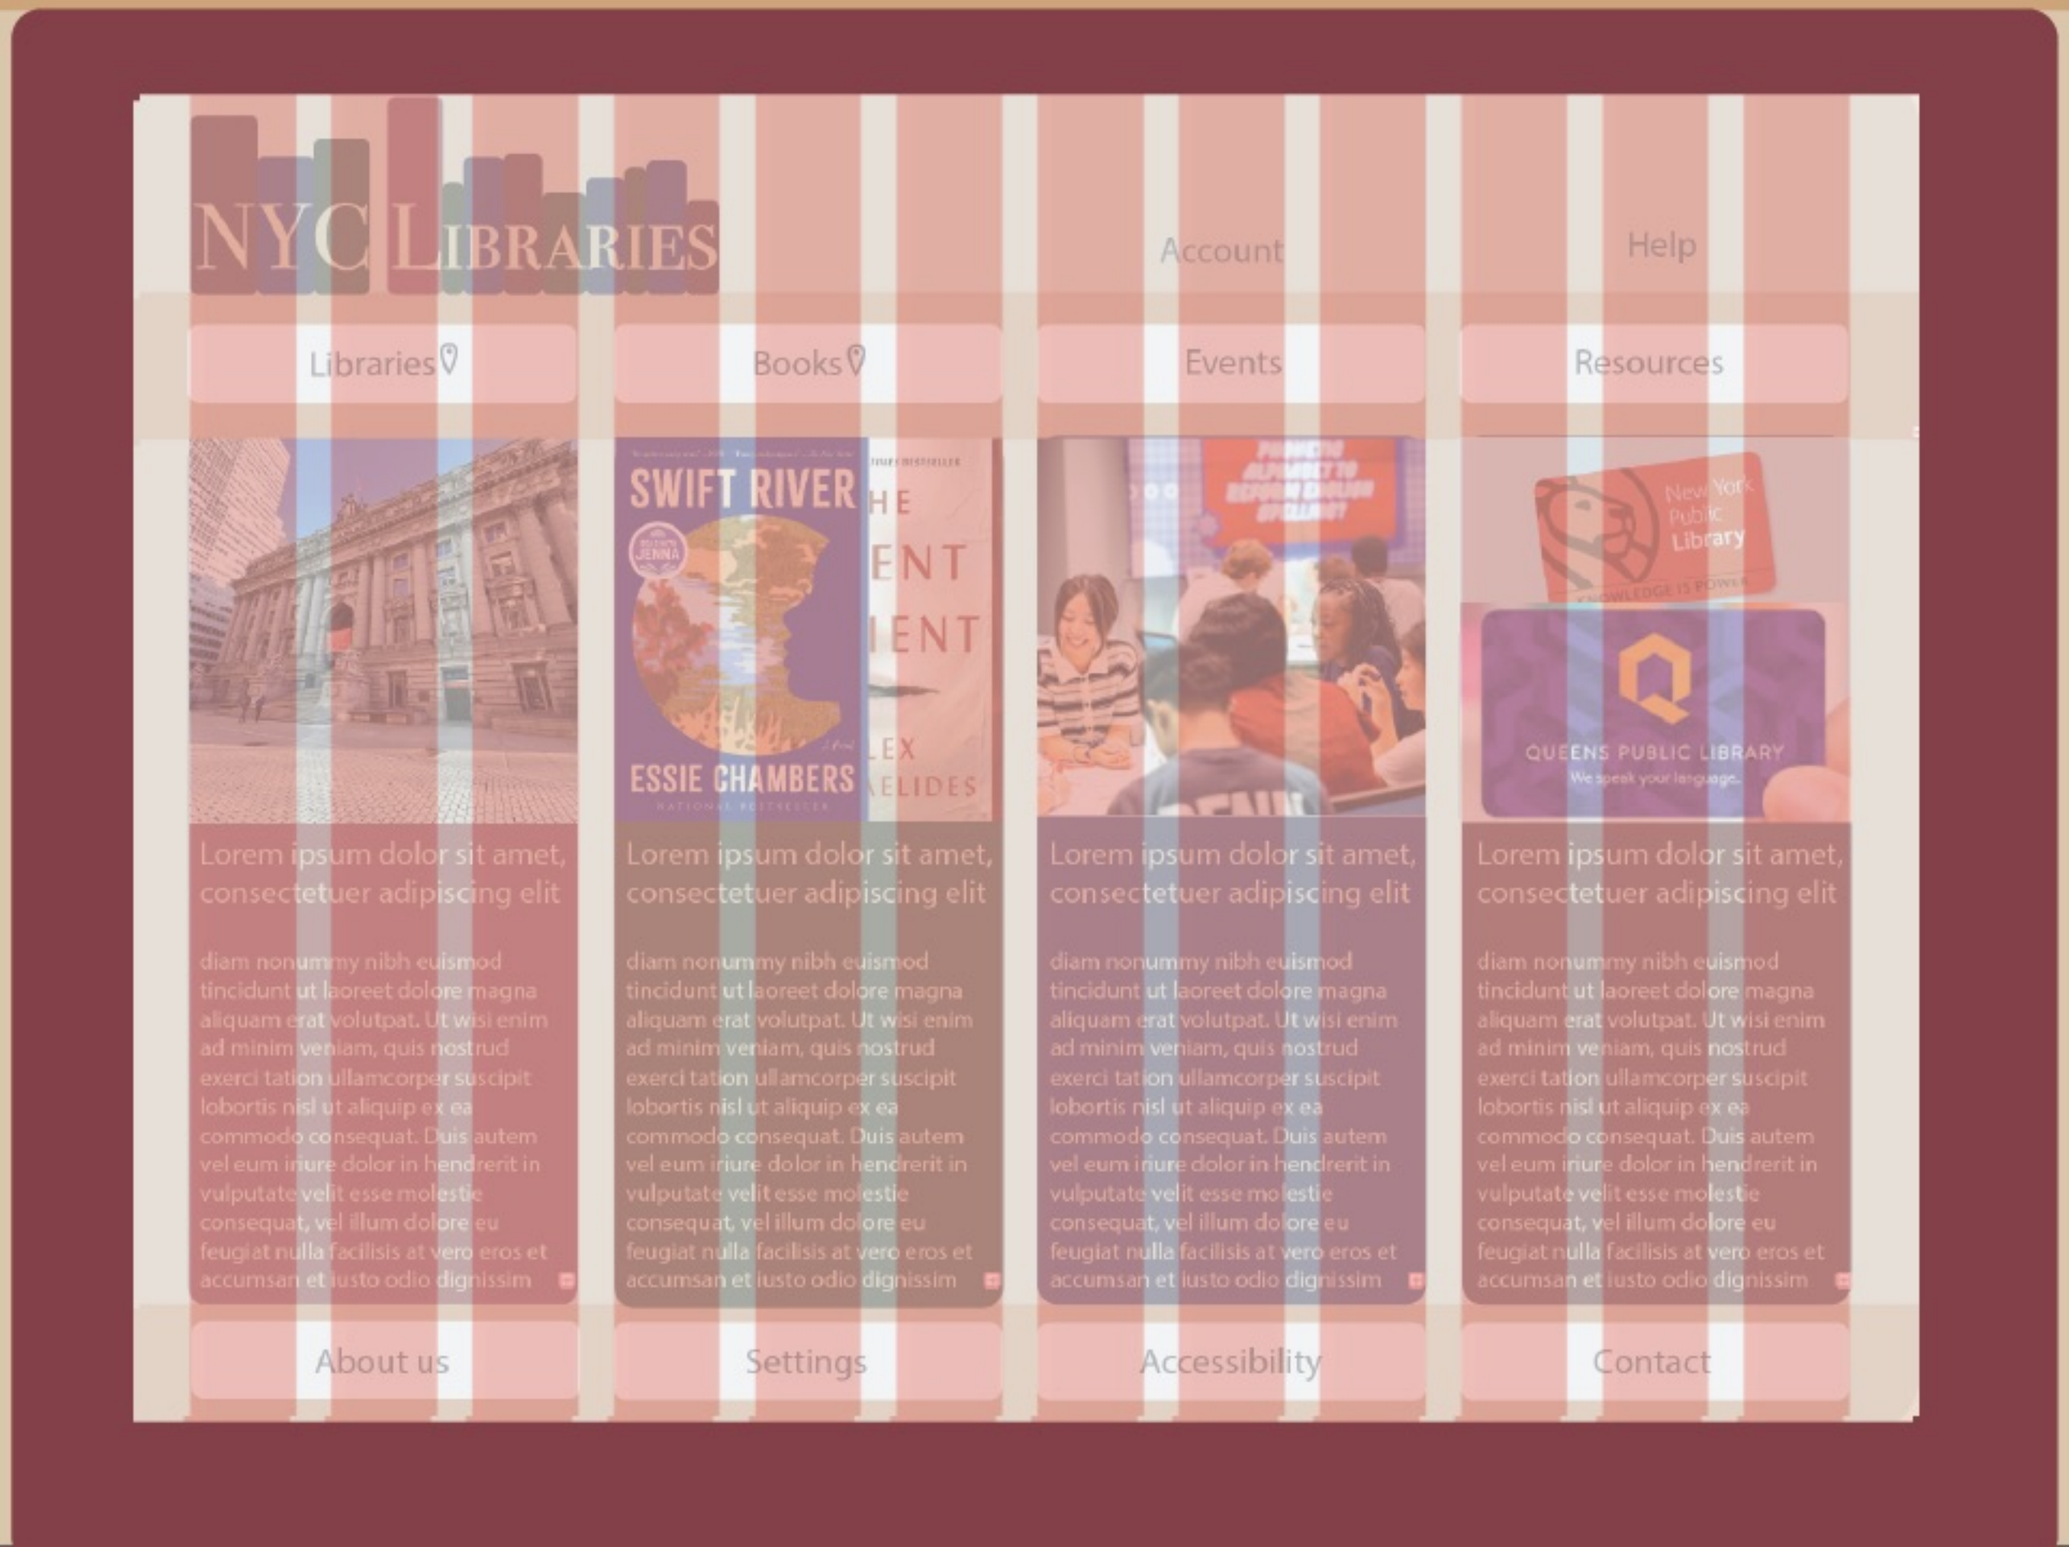
The website uses the 12 column grid. The grid helps shapethe bookshelf structure of the site.



#7b434a

#553839

#553839

#1f1e20

#d8c599

#444839

#40475d

#221f20

#ffffff

The logo uses:

BONDNI 72 SMALLCAPS

the website uses:
Myriad pro

books heights to look like buildings

gold “title” text on books